

'Re-framing your research' 6th November 2020 (2pm-3pm)
Speaker: Professor Valeria Pulignano (KU Leuven)

Tackling contemporary research challenges in uncertain times
Postgraduate Researchers' Seminar Series

Every research project evolves and changes, as new challenges and new questions present themselves, the current pandemic is one such situation. In this online session we will hear from Professor Valeria Pulignano about her experiences reshaping research projects throughout her career and how she has tackled constraints of researching within the current context in her role as the principal investigator for ResPeTMe a major Horizon 2020 project. This session will also provide an opportunity for PGRs to share some of their concerns and talk through practical solutions on how to re-think their projects within the current context.

This session will be tailored to your interests hence we will be collecting questions before 26th October:

To Submit Questions: shorturl.at/nsCU9
Event Registration: <http://bit.ly/reframe-your-research>

Valeria Pulignano is Full Professor of Sociology at the Center for Sociological Research (CESO) at KU Leuven. She is PI of the ERC AdG ResPecTMe “Resolving Precariousness: Advancing the Theory and Measurement of Precariousness Across the Paid/Unpaid Continuum” and Full Partner in the EU WorkYP “Working and Yet Poor”. She is Co-researcher at the Inter-University Research Centre on Globalisation and Work (CRIMT), research fellow at Warwick University (UK) and LISER, Luxemburg. She is Coordinating the RN17 on Work, Employment and Industrial Relations ESA and chief-editor of “Work, Employment & Organizations” (Frontiers). Her research lies in employment (industrial) relations and labour markets, their changing nature and implications for voice at work and inequality as differences in wages, working conditions, job quality and wellbeing. She published her work, among others, in the Work & Occupations, British Journal of Industrial Relations; Industrial and Labor Relations Review; Work, Employment and Society; European Journal of Industrial Relations; Journal of Industrial Relations. Among her recent books Shifting Solidarities. (2020, Palgrave-MacMillan) with I. Van Hoyweghen and G. Meyers; Reconstructing Solidarity (2018, Oxford University Press) with V. Doellgast and N. Lillie.